

World War I Essay

| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| The student did not accurately research, organize, plan or develop their essay | The student adequately researched, organized, planned and developed their essay | The student effectively researched, organized, planned and developed their essay | The student did an exceptional job of researching, organizing, planning and developing their essay |

SS.H.1.6-8.LC.

Classify series of historical events and developments as examples of change and/or continuity.

SS.H.4.6-8.LC.

Explain multiple causes and effects of historical events.

SS.IS.2.6-8

Ask essential and focusing questions that will lead to independent research

Your essay should be 300-500 words. Your essay can be longer, but limit it to under 1,000 words.

Write a series of 2-3 historical fiction letters from the view point of a soldier in the trenches during World War I. You can write from the point of view of the Allies or Central Powers. Your essay should include historical information such as actual names, dates and events. Be sure to include information we learned in class and outside research. You must also use one primary resource to gather information for your letters.